THE COVID-19 PANDEMIC

A butterfly flaps her wings in the great Amazon Jungle, and subsequently a Virus takes over the rest of the world.

Not even in our wildest dreams did we imagine that an invisible enemy could take down economies of the most powerful countries. Not even in our wildest dreams did we ever even think of washing dishes and doing household chores. Not even in our wildest dreams did we think that we could feel so demotivated, so reliable and so mentally disturbed by an invisible enemy. It is yet so bizarre when I say how afraid we are, uncertain of our own lives knowing that the new normal has taken over not letting normality restore. These difficult times have made us all realize the value of the tiniest of things in our lives.

Make “SMS” your habit

Over this whole lockdown period, there are so many uncanny things we have been grateful for which we could have never been before. Grateful for a roof over our heads, a family to share these testing times with, to live in a country with an excellent team of professionals who are selflessly working to keep everyone safe. It becomes our moral duty to support our frontliners & follow Government regulations for our own safety & well-being.

CONCLUSION

As we begin to continue our lives and adapt to a change we never thought was possible, we all need to remember that there is a ray of hope at the end of the tunnel. Together, we can win any battles we fight.
